This book is about following one's dream, taking risks, and going with an idea that can be built into a company. By Jeff Lippincott I really liked this book a lot. It's a book written by a female entrepreneur who started her own company in Australia when she was 18. She winged it, and somehow it grew to be a real success despite her lack of a formal business plan. But eventually her lack of proper planning caught up with her and the company was forced into bankruptcy and as a result she lost control of it. This book is a compilation of 61 lessons she learned from her experience riding the wave of success as her company grew and then fell. The lessons are grouped in the following 12 chapters: 1. You already have ideas (1-6) 2. From ideas to decisions (7-13) 3. Research is simpler than it sounds (14-19) 4. Looking closer (20-23) 5. The road map (24-27) 6. On the money trail (28-33) 7. Marketing: Anyone can do it (34-38) 8. Putting yourself on the line (39-43) 9. The greatest show on earth (44-48) 10. Now you're moving (49-53) 11. The err is human (54-58) 12. Keep the flame alive (59-61) Epilogue: The last word on the very beginning This book is about following one's dream, taking risks, and going with an idea that could be built into a company. It is filled with words of wisdom regarding entrepreneurship. It is motivational, and includes tips and anecdotes that just about any wanta-be entrepreneur will find useful on their road to starting a small business of their own. I wish I could list all 61 of the lesson titles in this review. But that wouldn't be fair or right. However, the 14 lesson titles that were my favorites were: 5. Fantasizing is essential 14. Avoid Complication 15. The destination determines the journey 16. Go back to school 24. Close the information gap 25. Start with the questions 26. Mapping it out 28. Ideas need money, and vice versa 34. Keep it real 35. Successful marketing: Something simple 36. Successful marketing: Something true 37. Successful marketing: Something consistent 38. Successful marketing: Something with a point of view 39. Strive for balance The book follows a typical sequence. First the lesson learned is presented and then the author tells her story as it related to the lesson. If you are thinking about starting a business of your own, then seriously consider getting a copy of this book and giving it a read. You won't be sorry you did. 5 stars!
