By sulis This sparky work combines Cato Hoeben's vividly descriptive experiences with the deft writing skills of his mother, famous British journalist Angela Neustatter. It's a compelling read, full of quotes from off-beat entrepreneurs, and offering savvy practical advice. But what really lifts this work out of a "how-to book" full of dry theory, is Cato's journey from an exhausted employee commuting between London and Seville, into internet savvy entrepreneurship enhancing his musical talents. This book is a must for free-spirited creative types carving a niche for themselves outside the mainstream. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Excellent Guide on How to Make Money from Your Interests By Anita J. Bihovsky The Lifestyle Entrepreneur couldn't come at a better time, when many are scrambling to find multiple revenue streams that meet their financial, personal, and/or professional needs while allowing them to actually enjoy what they do. This inspiring "how-to" guide is filled with a wide range of practical tips on how to parlay skills, knowledge and even hobbies into a means of generating income on one's own terms. This easy-to-read book includes Cato Hoeben's own experiences as well as those of many others interviewed by him and his co-author, Angela Neustatter, to provide numerous useful ideas on "How to Turn Your Interests into Money." A very worthwhile read. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Fantastic! A really great By Michael B. Fantastic! A really great, straightforward guide for anyone who would like to use their multiple passions to gain steady self-employed income.

Finally, a book that proves there's a new way of having a career, whether you are in a job, unemployed, or retired. Why have one boring job-for-life when you can have several cool jobs-for-the-time-being. Many companies and the civil service have long known the benefits of having multiple suppliers and changed their way of operating to fully capture these benefits. It's time that the work force realised the same thing and divided up their work into multiple jobs that benefit them.

About the Author Cato Hoeben is a film composer, whose work has been nominated at Raindance and won Virgin media Shorts in 2012 and has worked with many creative agencies. He is married and divides his time between Barcelona and London. Angela Neustatter is a journalist who has written over many years for the Guardian, where she was a women's page editor, Independent, Telegraph, Sunday Times, You, Psychologies and other publications, during which time she raised a family of 2 children.
